FOREWORD

Title VIII of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-344) assigned the Comptroller General the responsibility to identify congressional information needs as expressed in legislative requirements; to monitor the reporting requirements of the Congress; to furnish program evaluations conducted or commissioned by any Executive agency; to identify congressional needs for fiscal, budgetary and program-related information; and to maintain a central file or files of fiscal and budgetary information.

As part of its efforts to fulfill these responsibilities, the General Accounting Office (GAO) has established and maintains the Congressional Information Sources Inventories and Directories (CISID) data base. It consists of inventories of requirements for reports to the Congress, evaluation studies, and fiscal, budgetary, and program-related information sources and systems. This data base is maintained on central computer files and is transferable to other organizations, including the Library of Congress' SCORPIO information retrieval system, thus facilitating the use of the inventories by the Congress and others.

For those who may not have immediate access to SCORPIO, or other systems providing access to CISID, GAO regularly publishes the Congressional Sourcebook Series. This series of directories reflects the updating of the inventories' contents. It consists of three separate volumes. Each volume is an indexed directory and guide, addressing the following areas:

(1) Federal Evaluations—describes program and management evaluation reports produced by and for the departments and agencies of the Federal Government. Published annually.

(2) Requirements for Recurring Reports to the Congress—describes the requirements for statutory and nonstatutory recurring reports to the Congress from the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the Federal Government and from independent agencies and federally chartered corporations. Published every 2 years.

(3) Federal Information Sources and Systems—describes major documents, facilities, and systems maintained by Federal agencies, which support agencies' missions and contain fiscal, budgetary, and program-related information. Published every 4 years.

The Congressional Sourcebook Series volumes, together with the CISID computer tapes, are designed to facilitate identification, acquisition, and utilization of relevant and reliable information which is needed by the Congress in carrying out its oversight and budget control responsibilities.

The Congressional Sourcebook Series will be distributed to each member of the Congress, each congressional committee and subcommittee, congressional staffs, the President and Vice President of the United States, the head of each Federal department and agency, the Chief Justice of the United States and other officials of the Judicial Branch, State government officials, and libraries.

I invite your comments and suggestions on how these directories can be made more useful in future editions.

INTRODUCTION

This volume of the Congressional Sourcebook Series reflects an updated inventory of requirements for recurring reports to the Congress as of September 30, 1981. The Congress levies reporting requirements on Federal agencies and others to obtain information on government programs and activities. The General Accounting Office is publishing this volume of the Requirements for Recurring Reports to the Congress to facilitate access to these requirements and to assist the Congress in carrying out its oversight responsibilities.

The directory is divided into two sections, the citation section and the index section. The citation section is organized by agency and contains, for each reporting requirement, a synopsis of the requirement, a descriptive abstract, budget data, authorizing legislation, congressional committees of relevance, geographic coverage, and public availability. The index section provides access to the citation section by subject, agency, congressional committee, law, and budget function. The User's Guide on page xiii provides a detailed explanation of how to use the two sections.

PURPOSE AND SCOPE

Requirements for Recurring Reports to the Congress is published primarily to provide the Congress with an inventory of congressionally mandated reporting requirements. It describes approximately 2900 recurring reporting requirements of the executive, congressional, and judicial branch agencies, independent agencies, and federally chartered corporations through fiscal year 1981.

The emphasis in the inventory has been on "requirements" for reports. Often a difference exists between requirements for reports and actual number of reports submitted to the Congress. The causes for the difference are many, including requirements for reporting the occurrence of an event that has not yet occurred, new requirements for which no report has been prepared to date, the possibility that the requirement has lost its significance through the passage of time, and reporting requirements that require more than one agency to report.

This volume was derived from the Inventory of Requirements for Reports to the Congress (R-File) of the Congressional Information Sources Inventories and Directories (CISID) data base. This data base was established as part of GAO's efforts to fulfill its responsibilities under Title VIII of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-334). Section 202(d) of the Act directs the Comptroller General to monitor the various recurring reporting requirements of the Congress and committees and make recommendations to the Congress and committees for changes and improvements in their reporting requirements to meet congressional information needs ascertained by the Comptroller General, to enhance their usefulness to the congressional users and to eliminate duplicative or unneeded reporting.

METHODOLOGY AND RELIABILITY

The current inventory of requirements for recurring reports was compiled from information furnished by preparing agencies in response to GAO requests of August 3, 1976, and annually thereafter. In 1976 each agency was provided with a listing of requirements for recurring reports which GAO had identified through various research approaches. Slip laws, House Document 96-14* and the Department of Justice's computerized retrieval information system (JURIS) were used to identify requirements. Since 1976, in an effort to keep the inventory current, GAO has conducted annual updates. Each agency, using guidelines and procedures prepared by GAO, updated the information contained in the inventory for its agency.

AVAILABILITY OF REPORTS CITED IN THIS DIRECTORY

The General Accounting Office does not possess copies of the reports cited in this directory, except for those produced by GAO. Copies of other agencies' reports must be obtained from the agency or from the other sources identified in the citation. Listed below is information on how to obtain reports from the General Accounting Office (GAO), the Government Printing Office (GPO), and the National Technical Information Service (NTIS).

General Accounting Office. Requests for copies of GAO reports should be sent to:

U.S. General Accounting Office
Document Handling and Information Services Facility
P.O. Box 6015
Gaithersburg, MD 20760
Telephone: (202) 275-6241

The first five copies of individual reports are free of charge. Additional copies of bound audit reports are $3.25 each. Additional copies of unbound reports (i.e., letter reports) and most other publications are $1.00 each. There will be a 25% discount on all orders for 100 or more copies mailed to a single address. Sales orders must be prepaid on a cash, check, or money order basis. Checks should be made out to the "Superintendent of Documents." GAO reports are also available on microfiche.

Government Printing Office. A number of reports are shown as being available from the GPO, Superintendent of Documents. Reports may be purchased from this source by writing to:

Superintendent of Documents
U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, D.C. 20402
Telephone: (202) 783-3238

Include the GPO Stock Number when ordering reports. All orders must be prepaid. Visa and Master Card credit cards are accepted.

USER'S GUIDE

Requirements for Recurring Reports to the Congress attempts to provide the user with a full range of information relating to congressionally required reports, including the agency which prepares the report, the public law to which it relates, and the congressional recipients. It is divided into two sections: the Citation Section and the Index Section.

Citation Section

The Citation section is arranged by agency. The reporting requirements for the 14 major departments appear first followed by those of the independent agencies, boards, and commissions. A section on multi-agency reports, reports required of several agencies, is also included.

Each citation refers to a reporting requirement levied by the Congress on a Federal agency or federally chartered corporation. A citation may contain as many as 12 information elements, although all elements are rarely included for any one citation. The information elements are shown in the following sample citation entry. An explanation of each element follows the sample.

8. Availability: Source(s) from which a report is available. The source(s) may be the preparer of the report, GPO, NTIS, or other sources. Some reports are not publicly available.
9. Geographic Relevance: Level(s) of geographic reference utilized when aggregating data contained in the report, e.g., national, state, county, Congressional District, etc.
10. Synopsis of Requirement: Summary of the contents of the reporting requirement as stated in the law.
11. Abstract: Summary of the contents of the actual report.
12. Agency Contact: Office and telephone number of the issuing/preparing agency that can provide additional information on the report.

Index Section

Five separate indexes in this section allow the user to search for the reporting requirements information located in the Citation Section. Each index refers the user back to the Citation Section by a report title and accession number reference. To assist the user, a short explanation and sample entry appear at the beginning of each index. Descriptions of the indexes follow:

- Subject Index: This index allows the user to identify reporting requirements by searching for keywords relating to a chosen subject area. Subjects, concepts, and topics as well as names of specific entities, such as organizations and places, are arranged alphabetically.
- Agency Index: This index permits the user to identify reporting requirements of a specific Federal agency. Parent departments and agencies and subordinate bureaus and offices are arranged alphabetically.
- Congressional Index: This index allows the reader to identify reporting requirements relating to a particular Congressional committee. Reporting requirements are indexed under the committees that have oversight responsibility for the law that requires the report. House of Representatives, Senate, and Joint Committees are arranged alphabetically.
- Law Index: This index assists the user in identifying the reporting requirements contained in a specific law. It is divided into four subsections of statutory references: Public Law Name; Public Law Number; U.S. Code number; and U.S. Statutes-at-Large number. The index also includes a Miscellaneous Authorities section which contains references to nonstatutory authorities.
- Budget Function Index: This index enables the reader to identify reporting requirements as they relate to the budget functional/subfunctional categories by which Federal funds are classified. The three-digit codes are arranged in numerical sequence.

Annual Report of the Secretary of Commerce.

Frequency/Due Date: Fiscal Year (Annually) / End of Fiscal Year.
OMB Funding Code/Title: 13-0120-0-1-376 / Salaries and Expenses
Congressional Relevance: House Committee on Energy and Commerce; Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation.
Authority: Department of Commerce Organic Act, as amended (P.L. 57-87, § 8; 32 Stat. 829; 15 U.S.C. 1519).

Requirement: The Secretary of Commerce shall submit an annual report to the Congress describing the work done by the Department in fostering, promoting, and developing foreign and domestic commerce; the mining, manufacturing, shipping, and fishery industries; and the transportation facilities of the United States. Recommendations relating to the improvement of the effectiveness of the performance of the duties and purposes of the Department shall be included. Abstract: This report presents all Department of Commerce activities for the past fiscal year. Summaries are given covering the activities of the various agencies of the Departments and Offices, with statistical information included where applicable. Congressional Relevance: House Committee on Public Works and Transportation; Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works.
Authority: Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 (P.L. 92-500, § 6(b); 86 Stat. 898; 33 U.S.C. 1251 note).

Requirement: The Secretary of Commerce shall make reports at least annually to the President and to the Congress setting forth the results of investigations of the potential economic impact of evolving pollution-control programs in the United States and abroad, with special emphasis on the effects on comparable prices of domestic and imported goods. Abstract: The report discusses the extent to which pollution abatement and control programs will be imposed on or voluntarily undertaken by U.S. manufacturers in the near future, and the probable short- and long-range effects of the costs of such programs (computed to the greatest extent practical on an industry-by-industry basis) on the production costs of the manufacturers and the market prices of the goods purchased by them. Also contained in the report is the probable extent to which pollution abatement and control programs will be implemented in foreign industrial nations in the near future. The extent to which the production costs (again, on an industry-by-industry basis, wherever practical) of foreign manufacturers will be affected by the costs of such programs is discussed. The report includes an analysis of the probable competitive advantage that any article manufactured in a foreign nation will likely have in relation to a comparable article made in the United States if that foreign nation does not require its manufacturers to implement pollution abatement and control programs, requires a lesser degree of pollution abatement and control programs, or in any way reimburses or otherwise subsidizes its manufacturers for the cost of such programs.

Authority: Fair Packaging and Labeling Act (P.L. 89-755, § 8; 80 Stat. 1300; 15 U.S.C. 1457).

Requirement: Each officer or agency required to promulgate regulations for the packaging or labeling of any consumer commodity or to participate in the development of voluntary product standards for consumer commodities under the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act shall submit an annual report to the Congress containing a full description of activities related to the administration and enforcement of that act during the preceding year. Abstract: This report summarizes the work of the Department of Commerce in its efforts to determine whether the reasonable ability of consumers to make value comparisons of any packaged consumer commodity is impaired by the undue proliferation of the weights, measures, or quantities in which such a commodity is offered for retail sale. The Department's role in bringing about the voluntary elimination of such undue proliferation by establishing voluntary product standards and informal package quantity standards with full participation by industry representatives is discussed. In its efforts to promote nationwide uniformity in consumer package labeling, the Department's effectiveness in establishing liaison with State and local weights and measures officials, and with representatives of agencies of the Federal Government is also discussed.

Requirement: The Secretary of Defense shall submit an annual report to the Congress recommending the annual active duty end strength level for each component of the armed services for the next fiscal year and the annual civilian personnel end strength level for each component of the Department of Defense for the next fiscal year. The report shall include justification for the recommendations, an explanation of the relationship between the personnel strength levels recommended and national security policies, and specific detailed personnel information. Abstract: This report details military and civilian defense manpower requirements for the fiscal year. The language used throughout to describe and explain requirements is the Defense Planning and Programming Categories (DPPC): Strategic Forces, Tactical and Mobility Forces, Auxiliary Activities, Support Activities, and Individuals. The report provides a summary of Defense manpower requirements, and highlights the Defense Policy upon which the requirements are based. It details manpower requirements for each functional category across all military services and describes the manpower programs of each service and their accomplishments in achieving improved manpower utilization. It provides a preview of manpower matters to be presented before the Armed Services Committees. The various appendices present special ana-

Abstract: This report tabulates prime contract awards of military procurement actions by state. Information is provided for the net value of procurement actions by fiscal year and for actions by department. The data do not directly indicate the state in which the actual production work is done; they primarily indicate the location of the plant where the product will be finally assembled and processed. The report includes definitive contracts and funded portions of letter contracts and letters of intent, job orders, task orders, and purchase orders on industrial firms. It also includes interdepartmental purchases, made from or through other governmental agencies. The state data include upward or downward revisions and adjustments of over $10,000, such as cancellations, price changes, supplemental agreements, and amendments.

Abstract: This pamphlet contains a distribution of military prime contract awards over $10,000 each by Service Category and Federal Supply Classification. Section A covers amounts of awards for research, development, test, and evaluation work (RDT & E). The categories used are based on Department of Defense Claimant Programs, and are divided into four kinds of RDT & E work. Section B tabulates Other Services and Construction, using 15 major subdivisions and approximately 160 individual classes specifically developed for this purpose. Section C covers the Federal Supply Classification Structure, developed for supply management of items in the system. Summaries of data for sections B and C are provided. Data cover only those contracts placed directly by the Department of Defense and do not reflect the large amounts of subcontracts for basic and intermediate materials and components. For security reasons, various contracts have been reported with a classification other than the one describing the item purchased, leaving data for some Federal Supply Classes incomplete. The report covers procurement from all sources, including education and non-profit institutions, Federal agencies, foreign contractors, and U.S. business concerns.

Abstract: This report lists by geographic location Department of Defense prime contractors which received awards of $10,000 or more. Contractors are listed alphabetically by city for each state, with aggregate totals in thousands of dollars. The city name normally indicates the location where the prime contract work or service is to be performed or the product is to be finally processed or assembled. Data do not reflect locations where work is performed by subcontractors. Contract awards between $10,000 and $25,000 for perishable subsistence are not reported by contractor.

Requirement: The Secretary of Defense shall submit a written report to the Congress by February 1 of each Fiscal Year describing the extent to which commercial and industrial type functions were performed by Department of Defense contractors during the preceding Fiscal Year. The Secretary shall include in each such report an estimate of the percentage of commercial and industrial type functions of the Department of Defense that will be performed by Department of Defense personnel, and the percentage of such functions that will be performed by private contractors, during the fiscal year during which the report is submitted. Abstract: Section II describes the extent to which Department of Defense (DOD) commercial and industrial-type functions were performed by DOD contractors during Fiscal Year (FY) 1980. First, and estimate is provided of the contract workyear equivalents of total DOD contract support services workload. Next, this is compared to the amount of DOD commercial and industrial work performed by DOD personnel during FY 80. Finally, estimates of the distribution of the FY 80 commercial and industrial workload are provided, arrayed according to DOD component, and subdivided according to major categories of DOD commercial and industrial functions, i.e., intermediate maintenance, depot maintenance, installation services, other nonmanufacturing, automatic data processing, products manufactured in-house, maintenance of real property, and other. Data used in compiling this report were extracted from annual inventories of commercial and industrial-type activites and contract support services currently prepared by DOD components. Section III provides an estimate of the percentage of commercial and industrial-type functions of DOD that will be performed by Department personnel and the percentage of such functions that will be performed by private contractors during FY 81.

Requirement: The Secretary of the Navy shall make an annual report to the House and Senate Committees on Armed Services containing data needed to monitor the effectiveness of the nuclear career annual incentive bonuses. Abstract: This report summarizes the status of the Nuclear Officer community strength, and the success and continued need of the Nuclear Officer Continuation Pay. The purpose of the Continuation Pay is to arrest the high resignation rate of Nuclear Officers, and to ensure adequate manning of the nuclear submarine fleet. In addition, it improves the retention of these officers to the point where equitable sea-shore rotation can be made available. At the end of the four-year period during which the bonus is paid, an increasing resignation rate is occurring: These officers experience an effective pay cut due to the termination of the pay, often accompanied by loss of submarine pay when transferred ashore. Private industry is able to recruit these officers, thus precluding achievement of improved sea-shore rotation. Expiration of current bonus legislation without counterbalancing incentive will result in a substantial voluntary loss of skilled and experienced young officers.

Requirement: The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit an annual report to the President for transmission to the Congress regarding the extent to which vocational educational agencies and institutions and vocational rehabilitation agencies are being utilized to carry out training programs supported by Federal funds under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 and describing administrative efforts to encourage the use of such institutions and agencies in implementing the act. Abstract: This report reviews many of the recent economic developments impacting on employment and unemployment levels. It reviews implementation activities of the comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 by the Departments of Labor and Health and Human Services; it also reviews some preliminary findings about the operation of this work. The report analyzes the rapidly changing employment situation of women workers, exploring the significant economic role of women in recent years in an expanding number of occupations. Among other questions explored is the relative efficiency of public service employment programs as a means of countering cycles of high unemployment. Included is an interim review of some recent research findings on the development of methods to determine the manpower impact of Government program and policy changes both at the national level and in areas where local firms have received important procurement contracts.

Requirement: Requested by Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs, January 21, 1981. Abstract: This report on organizational and personnel assignment reflects employment counts by organizational hierarchy. It gives the department total paid employment count as of January 1. The figures are further broken down by principal operating component. For example, Public Health Service has a separate count; within Public Health Service there is a total count by the next lower organization, Bureau of Foods. This pattern is followed for each of the four operating divisions of HHS (Public Health Service, Social Security Administration, Health Care Finance Administration, and Office of Human Development Services) and the Office of the Secretary.

Abstract: This report summarizes the activities of the Administration on Aging (AOA). The AOA has identified two major goals towards which it has directed its efforts. The first goal is to increase State and Area Agency on Aging capacity to 1) develop and implement annual operational plans enabling older persons to remain in their homes and other places of residence, 2) identify available resources, 3) set priorities for action programs, 4) coordinate existing services for older persons and pool available untapped resources, 5) promote development of supporting services, and 6) promote development of other social services. The second goal is to increase the capacity of the Federal sector to promote comprehensive coordinated services for older persons through coordination of plans and programs. Summaries of activities conducted by the seven constituent units of the AOA to forward these goals are included. Detailed information relating activities, major programs initiatives, and indications of anticipated developments are provided for the following areas: State and community programs, Federal coordination activities, research and demonstrations, training, evaluation, and special projects.

Requirement: The President shall report to the Congress on January 1, 1981, and annually thereafter on efforts being carried out to coordinate the various Federal energy conservation programs. Abstract: The report reviews the activities which have taken place to develop interagency consensus on the factors and data used in the development of energy conservation standards for new and existing buildings. The agencies participating in these efforts are Departments of Defense, Energy, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, and Agriculture, the General Services Administration, the National Bureau of Standards, the United States Postal Service, and the Veterans Administration. These agencies have formally recognized a five-stage consensus process and have appointed representatives to a working committee. The focus of this working committee in 1980 has been on the five areas specifically mentioned by Congress: fuel price projections, discount rate, inflation rate, climate conditions and zones, and building materials' costs and per- formance. Through a series of meetings, the working committee is near consensus in the first three areas. Dis- cussion in the final two areas has been deferred until the results of relevant research projects become available.

Geographic Relevance: State; Local

Requirement: The Commissioner of Education shall make a biennial report to the House and Senate committees having jurisdiction over the educational needs of children and the respective Committees on Appropriations concerning the results of evaluations of the programs and projects required under this title. Abstract: This report evaluates the implementation of United States Department of Education programs designed to meet the educational needs of disadvantaged children. Administration of programs is shared by the Secretary of Education, state education agencies (SEA's), and local education agencies (LEA's). The USOE determines funding and regulations and provides technical assistance and evaluation of results. SEA's administer the programs in their States, maintaining supervision of LEA activities. LEA's are required to identify areas of high concentrations of children from low income families, assess their special needs, and design projects that match available resources to meet these needs. Participants in programs include children of migratory workers, resident neglected children, and delinquent children. The report contains a detailed description of program effectiveness, summaries of ongoing and planned evaluation studies, and a list of evaluation data sources.

Requirement: Not later than 120 days after the close of each fiscal year, the Secreatry of Education shall prepare and submit to the President for transmittal to the Congress a full and complete report on the activities carried out under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended. Such annual reports shall include statistical data reflecting services and activities provided individuals during the preceding fiscal year. Abstract: The report describes activities conducted under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, Public Law 95-602, on behalf of handicapped persons. Nearly a dozen different Federal agencies detail how they have exercised their responsibilities in the previous year encompassing: the delivery of rehabilitation services to disabled persons, the development and continuation of special projects and initiatives, research conducted to offset the effects of disability, and advocacy activities, including court suits, to combat discrimination in employment and elsewhere directed against handicapped persons. Title I programs include the basic service delivery system, rehabilitation programs for severely handicapped individuals, and rehabilitation services for American Indians. Title II covers programs under the National Institute of Handicapped Research. Assistance to rehabilitation facilities, training programs, special demonstration and recreational programs, and the Helen Keller National Center are provided for under Title III. Title IV establishes the National Council on the Handicapped. Title V programs are related to employment of handicapped individuals, architectural and transportation barriers, employment and nondiscrimination under Federal grants and contracts, and an interagency coordinating council. Title VI involves community service employment programs for handicapped individuals and projects with industry and business opportunities for handicapped individuals. Title VII authorizes comprehensive services for independent living..

Requirement: Not later than 45 days after the effective date, the Consumer Product Safety Commission shall submit a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and to the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce which contains a detailed statement of the manner in which the Commission intended to carry out enforcement of cellulose insulation standards. No later than 6 months after the date the report is submitted, the Commission shall submit a report to each committee which describes the enforcement activities of the Commission during the most recent 6-month period. Abstract: These reports to the Congress involve the progress of enforcement of the standard for cellulose home insulation. The standard will address flammability and corrosiveness hazards posed by cellulose home insulation. In compliance with P.L. 95-319, the Commission issued GSA Specification HH-1-515C on August 4, 1978, as an interim standard. An initial enforcement report, including the test results of cellulose insulation produced by at least 25 manufacturers, was submitted to the Congress on August 24, 1978. A subsequent report covering at least 50 additional manufacturers was submitted to the Congress in February of 1979. The next report is due in August.

Requirement: The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency shall compile and publish, from time to time, a report on the status and progress of Federal activities relating to noise research and noise control. This report shall describe the noise-control programs of each Federal agency and assess the contributions of those programs to the Federal Government's overall efforts to control noise. Abstract: Volume I deals primarily with the status and progress of programs. Section 2 presents an overview of EPA noise control planning, regulatory and nonregulatory actions and programs, and research, development and demonstration (RD&D) programs. Section 3 describes the progress of EPA planning actions to achieve a comprehensive noise control plan, and provides some tentative long range goals. It also explains interactions and mechanisms involved in interagency cooperation. Section 4 provides a compilation of the various Federal activities pursuant to the development and implementation of noise standards and regulations. Several kinds of noise activities engaged in by Federal agencies are covered in section 5, including hearing conservation, noise abatement, and technical assistance programs. Section 6 summarizes the research and development activities of the Federal agencies. Descriptions of the programs within specific agencies and noise problem areas are provided as appendices. Volume II consists of appendices containing descriptions of Federal noise RD & D programs in the areas of surface vehicles, aviation, noise effects, and machinery.

Requirement: Not later than 3 months after August 7, 1977, the Task Force on Environmental Cancer and Heart and Lung Disease shall be established and shall include representatives of the Environmental Protection Agency; the National Cancer Institute; the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute; the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health; and the National Institute on Environmental Health Sciences. The task force shall recommend a comprehensive research program to determine and quantify the relationship between environmental pollution and cancer and heart and lung disease; recommend comprehensive strategies to reduce or eliminate the risks of cancer or other diseases associated with environmental pollution; recommend research and other measures to prevent or reduce the incidence of environmentally related cancer and heart and lung disease, coordinate research by and stimulate cooperation between agencies; and report to the Congress, not later than 1 year after August 7, 1977, and annually thereafter, on the progress of the task force. Abstract: This report describes the work of the task force in its fourth year and outlines plans for the future. During its first year, the task force defined the problem of environmentally related cancer and heart and lung diseases and developed objectives and an organizational capability to address the problem. It also identified Federal resources available and began the exchange of information among its members. During the second year, project groups were formed to deal with three areas: Standardization of Measurements and Tests; Education of Public and Health Professionals; and Exposure and Metabolic Mechanisms. Each group will identify and recommend special actions appropriate for meeting the objectives of reduction of environmental disease. The task force views information exchange as the primary basis for establishing coordination and development of interagency programs. Activities this year included creation of a directory of interagency groups working in environmental health, publishing a monthly calendar of events, listing data bases for Federal research programs. The task force will continue its information exchange activities and will strengthen ties with such groups as the Interagency Regulatory Liaison Group and the National Toxicology Program.

Requirement: The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) shall provide followup reports annually on actions taken by the EPA and other Federal agencies to regulate sources of halocarbon emissions, the results of such regulations in protecting the ozone layer, and the need for additional regulatory action, if any. Abstract: This report reviews the progress made by EPA in regulating ozone depleting substances. In March 1978, EPA and FDA issued final rules prohibiting the manufacturing and processing of chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) for nonessential aerosol propellant uses. EPA continues its investigation of nonaerosol and miscellaneous CFC uses, including use as refrigerants, foam blowing agents, cleaning agents in the electronic and metal industries, and as solvents. The EPA study includes several regulatory strategies to reduce CFC emissions, namely: direct traditional regulation, economic incentives, and a conservation program. In implementing the Clean Air Act and deciding to what extent further regulation is necessary, EPA is continuing its studies of current development in ozone theory, the extent of adverse health and environmental consequences of ozone depletion, the technological capability to reduce emissions from major sources, and the cost of achieving control.

Requirement: The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency shall submit to the President and to the Congress by January 1 of each year a comprehensive report on the administration of the Toxic Substances Control Act during the preceding fiscal year. The report shall include information on testing of chemical substances and mixtures required under the act; the number of manufacturing and processing notices received under the act; the rules issued during the year; a summary of enforcement actions; a summary of major problems encountered in the administration of the act; and recommendations for additional legislation. Abstract: Section 30 of the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA) requires comprehensive reporting on the administration of the Act during the year. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) reports on several specific TSCA activities: the number of section 4 test rules promulgated and the costs incurred by those who must do testing as a result of them; the number of notices received under section 5, the number of those notices subject to a section 4 rule, and a summary of any action taken under section 5(g); the number of rules issued under section 6; and a statement of issues, completed or pending judicial actions, and administrative actions under section 16 (penalties). In addition to the reporting requirements described in section 30, there are requirements for reporting progress with sections 9(d) (coordination with other agencies) and 28(c) (grants programs). Problems EPA encounters in administering TSCA and recommendations for additional legislation in order to carry out the mandate of TSCA more efficiently are also part of the reporting requirement.

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission: Annual Report. (EEOC-3045).

Frequency/Due Date: Fiscal Year (Annually) / End of Fiscal Year.
OMB Funding Code/Title: 45-0100-0-1-751 / Salaries and Expenses
Congressional Relevance: House Committee on Education and Labor; Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources.
Authority: Civil Rights Act of 1964 (P.L. 88-352, § 705(e); 78 Stat. 258; 42 U.S.C. 2000e-4(d)).

Requirement: The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall submit to the President and to the Congress, at the end of each fiscal year, a report concerning the actions it has taken and the moneys it has disbursed. The report shall include such further reports on the cause of, and means of eliminating discrimination and such recommendations for further legislation as may appear desirable. Abstract: A summary of the work of the Commission to bring relief to persons suffering from employment discrimination is contained in this report which also includes the methods employed to eliminate systemic discriminatory features of employment systems. Among these are voluntary compliance, conciliation agreements, court orders or decrees (the result of litigation), as well as actions by State and local government fair employment agencies. To measure the impact of these actions, the Commission implemented a Management Accountability Plan (MAP). The primary goal of the system was to assure that the desired results are specifically defined in advance and that performance can be correctly measured in terms of expected achievement. The MAP relates the activities and objectives of each program–compliance, litigation, voluntary or State and local action–to the overall Commission goals.

Congressional Relevance: House Committee on Government Operations.
Authority: Letter of May 8, 1979 from Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal.
Availability: Agency
Geographic Relevance: National; Federal Home Loan Bank Districts

Requirement: May 8, 1979 letter request from Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal. Abstract: This report includes a narrative supplemented by appropriate statistical material on FHLBB consumer complaint program, including: structure of the program; administrative changes during the year; the nature of complaints received during the year, by type; the resolution of complaints so as to indicate the extent to which the program has provided useful assistance to consumers; the extent and nature of concentration in complaints at certain institutions that have indicated the possibility of a general regulatory problem; and the cost of the program. The report has a format that makes it suitable for release as a public information document. In reporting on the resolution of complaints, two points are considered: the information provided on resolutions of complaints reports the resolution of complaints during the calendar year covered by the report, not resolutions achieved during that calendar year; and the statistical report of complaint resolutions is broken down by classes of complaints such as discrimination in lending, other lending complaints, electronic funds transfer complaints, other deposit complaints, and all other complaints.

FEDERAL MEDIATION AND CONCILIATION SERVICE

R03205-001
The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service Annual Report.

Frequency/Due Date: Fiscal Year (Annually) / End of Fiscal Year.
OMB Funding Code/Title: 93-0100-0-1-505 / Salaries and Expenses
Congressional Relevance: House Committee on Education and Labor; Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources.
Authority: Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947 (P.L. 80-101, § 201(c); 61 Stat. 153; 29 U.S.C. 172).

Requirement: The Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service shall make a report to the Congress at the end of each fiscal year. Abstract: This report summarizes the activities of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS). The objectives of FMCS are to prevent or minimize work stoppages in industries affecting interstate commerce caused by disputes between labor and management. To this end the FMCS provides professional advice, guidance and counseling and promotes and encourages harmonious relationships between parties involved in labor-management collective bargaining disputes. Actual services include: (a) Providing mediation assistance to employees and labor organizations having collective bargaining disputes; (b) providing assistance to companies and unions in the prevention of disputes by seeking to improve their day to day relationships and creating a better degree of understanding and cooperation; and (c) providing assistance to companies and labor organizations in the selection of impartial arbitrators to hear and decide disputes over collective bargaining agreements. The Service is involved in special notice and mediation procedures designed to minimize work stoppages in contract disputes at all private health care institutions throughout the Nation. The Director of the Service, after due notice, may establish an impartial Board of Inquiry to look into the facts of the dispute. Except as a last resort the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service refrains from participation in intrastate matters or in controversies pertaining to interpretation or application of existing contracts. FMCS has no jurisdiction in railroad and airlines industries. The Service assists in dispute resolution involving employees of State and local governments where mediation services are unavailable and where one or both sides request FMCS assistance.

Authority: Interstate Commerce Act (P.L. 95-473, § 1; 92 Stat. 1381; 49 U.S.C. 10707).
Geographic Relevance: National

Requirement: The Interstate Commerce commission must complete a proceeding of investigation and suspension of new rail carrier rates (classifications, rules, or practices), and make its final decision by the end of the seventh month after the rate, classification, rule, or practice was to become effective. However, if the Commission reports to Congress by the end of the seventh month that it cannot make a final decision by that time and explains the reason for the delay, it may take an additional 3 months to complete the proceeding and make its final decision. If the Commission does not reach a final decision within the applicable time period, the rate, classification, rule, or practice is effective at the end of that time period, or, if already in effect at the end of that time period, remains in effect.
